A checklist of recent books
in the Political and Social Sciences

DE GAULLE AND THE WORLD: The Foreign Policy of the Fifth French Republic

by W. W. Kulski. "This is a scholarly documentation of de Gaulle's foreign policy since he became President of France. It examines thoroughly his character as a charismatic leader, his political philosophy, and especially the policies that have led him to a middle course between and outside the U.S. versus U.S.S.R. confrontation.

"It should be required reading for anyone studying foreign policy. Highly recommended."--Library Journal

The author, a Polish diplomat from 1928 to 1945, is now Duke Professor of political science at Duke University.

TEACHERS AND POLITICS IN FRANCE: A Pressure Group Study of the Fédération De L'Education Nationale

by James M. Clark. This is the only complete analysis of the political activities of the largest and most powerful teachers' organization in France, which represents teachers from elementary school through the universities. The FEN makes use of all means at its disposal to influence the political process. This case study of the FEN examines its goals, its techniques, and its effectiveness as a pressure group.

The author is associate professor of government and assistant to the president of the University of Maine.

$6.50

FRANCE AND ALGERIA: The Problem of Civil and Political Reform, 1870-1920

by Vincent Confer. This is an exploration in depth of reform movements in France, during the middle period of French control in Algeria, that attempted to secure the extension of political and civil rights for the Arabs and Berbers. Confer traces the course of reform efforts and analyzes the reasons for their failure and the effect of the failure on subsequent Franco-Algerian relations and events.

The author is professor of history at Syracuse University.

THE ARAB BA'TH SOCIALIST PARTY: History, Ideology, and Organization

by Kamel S. Abu Jaber. Foreword by Philip K. Hitti. "One welcomes Professor Abu Jaber's study of the Arab Ba'th Socialist Party, for it is a serious attempt to examine an important political movement in the contemporary Arab world. . . . This is the first book-length effort to examine the Ba'th's program and history."--Midstream

The author is assistant professor of political science and Middle East studies at the University of Tennessee.

New MEN AND MOVEMENTS Books

VITO MARCANTONIO, RADICAL IN CONGRESS

by Alan Schaffer. "This well-written volume and the entire series of which it is a part is highly recommended for anyone interested in American politics."--
Library Journal $6.50

THE TECHNOCRATS, PROPHETS OF AUTOMATION

by Henry Elsner, Jr. The author traces the technocracy movement from 1919 through its peak in the '30's to the present day, and analyzes the relevance of its theories to our present increasingly-automated society. $7.00

NORMAN THOMAS, RESPECTABLE REBEL, Second Edition

by Murray B. Seidler. The new edition brings the well-known political biography of Thomas and the Socialist Party up to date with added material and a new chapter on Thomas's actions on issues of the 1960's. $7.00

EDUCATION IN LARGE CITIES SERIES

Alan K. Campbell, editor

In this new series, economists and political scientists apply the techniques of their disciplines to the analysis of the special and critical problems of large-city education. The first two volumes are now available:

1. The Politics of Federal Aid to Education in 1965: A Study in Political Innovation

by Philip Meranto. Analyzes the political and other factors that made passage of ESEA possible in 1965 after many years of frustration and controversy.
Cloth, $5.75; paper, $3.25

2. Input and Output in Large-City High Schools

by Jesse Burkhead, with Thomas G. Fox and John W. Holland. An economic analysis of the relationship between resource allocations and educational results in the high schools of Chicago and Atlanta, and of non-school factors that affect output.
Cloth, $5.00; paper, $2.95

Announcing two important new books --

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE--THEORY AND GUIDELINES

Sidney C. Sufrin

Technical assistance to developing nations has been widely criticized and frequently misunderstood. Some criticisms have been valid, but many are beside the point, the author of this book believes.

There has been a lack of a proper theoretical framework from which to evaluate programs. The orientation and direction of many programs have been vague. Little attention has been paid to finding the proper approach to use for each individual country.

Professor Sufrin attempts in this book to supply the needed framework. He examines the economic and cultural barriers that have hampered acceptance of Western technology, and analyzes the reasons for the success or failure of a number of specific programs, using actual reports of aid technicians for case studies.

Clear guidelines emerge as to the responsibilities of both host and donor countries if effective technical assistance programs are to be achieved. This down-to-earth discussion is of vital interest to anyone concerned at any level with the problems of technical assistance.
